Spring Openings Delayed.

The announcement by the Stein-Bloch Company that they would not be prepared to show lines for spring, 1920, in both the New York and Rochester show-rooms before October 27 is said to indicate that the openings generally in the clothing market will be at least a full month later than under normal conditions. This is the first house to announce its spring opening, and it is believed that other houses will make announcements shortly.

The uncertainty regarding wages is

The uncertainty regarding wages is said to be a strong factor in delaying the showing of new lines, manufacturers making a point of the fact that the wage scale for the next season will not be decided until the early part of Octo-ber, and it is possible that a decision may not be reached even then.

In the belief that many buyers will come to the market for their goods, some of the smaller houses will not send salesmen on the road with samples for
